READY MONEY AT 3 PER CENT On watches, diamonds, and jewelry. LOUIS ABRAHAMS,

QUANTITY-QUALITY OR BOTH?

Every time you spend money in a purchase, you receive something that possesses a measure of both quantity and quality.

As a general rule, the more quality an article possesses the less quantity it has, and-vice versa-the more quantity, the less quality.

In buying advertising, you are practically buying circulation—you are paying the newspaper to tell your wants to people.

Circulation possesses both quantity and quality-it is not only a question of how many persons buy the paper, it is also a question of how many read the paper, how much time they have to read it thoroughly, what classes of readers are reached, the general effect of the news columns on the ad columns, the probability of your ad being read, and other questions of less

In this city THE WASHINGTON HERALD has 10,000 more circulation daily than any other morning paper, reaching over 100,000 readers. It reaches all classes of people, and, being an "all day" paper, it is read thoroughly. It enjoys the confidence of the public, and this confidence extends to the ad columns. There are no ads in large type to overshadow the little ones.

It is this quantity and quality of circulation that causes the Want Ads in The Wash-INGTON HERALD to bring results. Ads accepted by 'phone-rates one cent per word each in-
